Dr. Tsvetelina Spiridonova, who is fighting a covid in a separate ward, thinks there is good news in the battle with the coronavirus and it is called ivermectin.

"Unfortunately and in the horror of doctors, the encouraging preparations today in a number of studies are denied. We read positive and then a rebuttal appears. There's good news for a detergent.

We're talking about ivermectin.

This is the medication I would prescribe to my own mother to protect against covid. It is already produced in our country and is accessible. The new preparation is indicated for treatment and initial prophylaxis for coronavirus. The drug is approved and available. We are talking about a drug to allow the patient in a mild form," she explained.

She warned that the capacity of doctors and nurses had been exhausted.

"The situation is desperate. I call on the authorities to include general practitioners and D.C.C. Personally, I recommend ivermectina. Not a single patient of mine made it to the hospital.

All vaccinated patients should monitor their antibodies. I've had a bit of a fall and this needs to be investigated. The treatment is standardized and God protect us," Spironova added.

As of yesterday, the Ministry of Foreign Government has authorized the disinhibition, the bulgarian president of the United State of Bulgaria, which is the first of its 100 000 people, will be the only one who has ever been in a state of the world.
